PREFACE

This list aspires to bring up to date the record of military service by members of the Manchester University, first issued in 1915. It does not profess to be a complete roll of all those associated with the University, who have in one capacity or another done service to the state at the hour of its extreme need. It is limited to those who have joined the naval and military forces. Within this restriction it has aimed at comprehensiveness. Its compilers have striven to include all the names of graduates, present and past teachers and students, officers and employees of the University and members of its governing bodies who have joined the navy and army. It has, however, excluded the names of extra-mural members of the University Officers' Training Corps, whose only connection with the University has been service with that contingent.

It will readily be understood that such a list as is now published can neither be accurate in all its details nor form a complete record. It is hoped that the present issue will receive a publicity that will give opportunity for its improvement in a subsequent edition. Members of the University and others interested in the list are invited to facilitate this task by communicating any corrections or additions that they can suggest.

To the proposed further re-issue it is hoped to add a supplementary list of those associated with the University whose service has taken a form other than that of direct membership of the two war services but has involved the complete or substantial abandonment of their ordinary occupations. The difficulty of making such a record is clearly greater than that which has beset the compilers of the present list, but it is felt right that the attempt should be made. Whether it be successfully carried through must depend largely upon the co-operation of those able to give information. Their help is therefore earnestly invited. Any additions or corrections to the present list and all suggestions and names for the proposed one should be sent as soon as possible to the Editor of the Roll of Honour, Miss Mary Bradley, B.A., at the University Press, 12, Lime Grove, Oxford Road, Manchester or to myself at the same address.

The present publication could not have been issued without the zealous co-operation of many willing workers. The University is none the less grateful for their help, though their names are too numerous to be set down here.

T. F. TOUT.

THE UNIVERSITY PRESS,
MANCHESTER,
March 13th, 1917.

The dates prefixed to each name indicate, so far as can be ascertained, the year in which those mentioned began their connection with the University. After the individual name the relation of each person to the University is given. Accordingly the degrees following the name are degrees of Manchester University only.
